

A provider of software as a service is acting as a serviceman. If the provider does not transfer any tangible personal property to the customer, then the transaction generally would not be subject to Retailers' Occupation Tax, Use Tax, Service Occupation Tax, or Service Use Tax. If the provider transfers to the customer an API, applet, desktop agent, or a remote access agent to enable the customer to access the provider's network and services, it appears the subscriber is receiving computer software that is subject to tax. See 86 Ill. Adm. Code Parts 130 and 140. (This is a GIL.)

Dear Ms. XXX:

This letter is in response to your letter dated September 13, 2022, in which you requested information. The Department issues two types of letter rulings. Private Letter Rulings ("PLRs") are issued by the Department in response to specific taxpayer inquiries concerning the application of a tax statute or rule to a particular fact situation. A PLR is binding on the Department, but only as to the taxpayer who is the subject of the request for ruling and only to the extent the facts recited in the PLR are correct and complete. Persons seeking PLRs must comply with the procedures for PLRs found in the Department's regulations at 2 Ill. Adm. Code 1200.110. The purpose of a General Information Letter ("GIL") is to direct taxpayers to Department regulations or other sources of information regarding the topic about which they have inquired. A GIL is not a statement of Department policy and is not binding on the Department. See 2 Ill. Adm. Code 1200.120. You may access our website at www.tax.illinois.gov to review regulations, letter rulings and other types of information relevant to your inquiry.

The nature of your inquiry and the information you have provided require that we respond with a GIL. In your letter you have stated and made inquiry as follows:

Our FOREIGN company COMPANY is seeking clarification of the issue which digital goods are taxable with sales tax in Illinois. Our company would like to receive free legal opinion from Illinois state tax authority to start our business activity in a right way.

Background:

Our company is a distributor of digital goods, providing video game developers and publishers with promotional opportunities. In accordance with concluded distribution agreement with them, we take over the rights to use and sale their product/development on behalf of our company. Basically, our company is promoting, distributing and selling game to the end user on behalf of its own name (merchant of record model). Our company also accounts and collects Sales tax in the country of final user residence as per international requirements, because we are the final seller of the goods to end-user. So, when we'll exceed the threshold, we'll have to file sales tax return and remit sales tax. In our case we have no marketplace platform where end user can choose and buy different games. Our end user visits the certain game website, play there and buy in-game purchases there. And when he pays for in-game purchase he faces our company only on payment page. We sell games of different game developers and each game has its own website where end user play and buy in-game purchases.

We plan to sell video games with different types of monetization:

1. End user plays videogame for free, but he buys in-game items (coins, crystals, swords, etc.) for better results in the game. Our company sells additional content on video game website that may include access to pay-only portions of the game or digital aid. Examples of a digital aid would include additional gasoline for operating a virtual vehicle in a game or improved arms or equipment for use in a war game.
 2. End user subscribes for access to the game for a certain period.
 3. End user downloads the game and has unrestricted access.
 4. Digital codes of access. The end user buys digital code which is used to download video game to play.
- Game industry is our priority area. But we also consider an opportunity to be a distributor of other digital goods (not only game industry):
5. Live webinars or consultations
 6. Pre-recorded courses
 7. Streaming audio/video services
 8. Electronic tickets booking. When the end user buys electronic tickets to offline events (football matches, concerts etc.) and when he buys electronic tickets to online events.
 9. Gift cards
 10. Advertising

Questions:

1. Are above mentioned digital goods (10 types) taxable with sales tax in Illinois?
2. Does it make a tax difference whether games are download through the mobile application or the end user plays browser game?
3. Does in-game purchases taxability depend on the fact if the game is download by mobile app or not?

4. Is there local sales tax features (special rates or some other details) concerning above mentioned digital goods (10 types) in Chicago?
5. As well we have a question about online skill-based video games. For example, game tournament platform lets players buy in-game currency into their account balance in our game, and compete against other players of same skill level. All in-game purchases are made via a virtual currency which the customer previously bought. Each player receives the same game board, so the final result depends solely on the players skills. Every tournament has a different number of participants and a different prize pool distribution. Players can choose in advance the type of tournament they preferred, but they cannot choose their opponents. There are also payouts to end users (winners) in real money.
 - Could You clarify, is this case somehow special for sales tax taxation or not?
 - Are there some additional taxes for online skill-based video games in Illinois?

We would highly appreciate to receive your response by email ADDRESS or by fax.

Thank you in advance for your assistance.

DEPARTMENT'S RESPONSE:

Retailers' Occupation Tax and Use Tax

The Illinois Retailers' Occupation Tax Act imposes a tax upon persons engaged in this State in the business of selling tangible personal property to purchasers for use or consumption. See 35 ILCS 120/2; 86 Ill. Adm. Code 130.101. In Illinois, Use Tax is imposed on the privilege of using, in this State, any kind of tangible personal property that is purchased anywhere at retail from a retailer. See 35 ILCS 105/3; 86 Ill. Adm. Code 150.101. These taxes comprise what is commonly known as "sales" tax in Illinois. If the purchases occur in Illinois, the purchasers must pay the Use Tax to the retailer at the time of purchase. The retailers are then allowed to retain the amount of Use Tax paid to reimburse themselves for their Retailers' Occupation Tax liability incurred on those sales. If the purchases occur outside Illinois, purchasers must self-assess their Use Tax liability and remit it directly to the Department.

Persons who are engaged in the business of selling cards or coupons, which entitle purchasers to the right to redeem those cards for tangible personal property, are not engaged in selling tangible personal property. Rather, they are making sales of intangibles. Such sales are not subject to the Retailers' Occupation Tax. However, when those cards or coupons are used to purchase tangible personal property, the retailers transferring that tangible personal property incur Retailers' Occupation Tax liability based on their gross receipts from those sales.

Service Occupation Tax

Retailers' Occupation Tax and Use Tax do not apply to sales of service. Under the Service Occupation Tax Act, businesses providing services (i.e., servicemen) are taxed on tangible personal property transferred as an incident to sales of service. See 86 Ill. Adm. Code 140.101. The transfer of tangible personal property to service customers may result in either Service Occupation Tax liability or Use Tax liability for servicemen, depending upon which tax base they choose to calculate their liability.

Servicemen may calculate their tax base in one of four ways: (1) separately-stated selling price of tangible personal property transferred incident to service; (2) 50% of the serviceman's entire bill; (3) Service Occupation Tax on the serviceman's cost price if the serviceman is a registered de minimis serviceman; or (4) Use Tax on the serviceman's cost price if the serviceman is de minimis and is not otherwise required to be registered under Section 2a of the Retailers' Occupation Tax Act.

Using the first method, servicemen may separately state the selling price of each item transferred as a result of sales of service. The tax is based on the separately stated selling price of the tangible personal property transferred. If servicemen do not wish to separately state the selling price of the tangible personal property transferred, those servicemen must use the second method where they will use 50% of the entire bill to their service customers as the tax base. Both of the above methods provide that in no event may the tax base be less than the cost price of the tangible personal property transferred. Under these methods, servicemen may provide their suppliers with Certificates of Resale when purchasing the tangible personal property to be transferred as a part of sales of service. They are required to collect the corresponding Service Use Tax from their customers.

The third way servicemen may account for their tax liability only applies to de minimis servicemen who have either chosen to be registered or are required to be registered because they incur Retailers' Occupation Tax liability with respect to a portion of their business. Servicemen may qualify as de minimis if they determine that their annual aggregate cost price of tangible personal property transferred incident to sales of service is less than 35% of their annual gross receipts from service transactions (75% in the case of pharmacists and persons engaged in graphic arts production). See 86 Ill. Adm. Code 140.101(f). This class of registered de minimis servicemen is authorized to pay Service Occupation Tax (which includes local taxes) based upon the cost price of tangible personal property transferred incident to sales of service. Servicemen that incur Service Occupation Tax collect the Service Use Tax from their customers. They remit tax to the Department by filing returns and do not pay tax to their suppliers. They provide suppliers with Certificates of Resale for the tangible personal property transferred to service customers.

The final method of determining tax liability may be used by de minimis servicemen that are not otherwise required to be registered under Section 2a of the Retailers' Occupation Tax Act. Servicemen may qualify as de minimis if they determine that the annual aggregate cost price of tangible personal property transferred as an incident of sales of service is less than 35% of the servicemen's annual gross receipts from service transactions (75% in the case of pharmacists and persons engaged in graphic arts production). Such de minimis servicemen handle their tax liability by paying Use Tax to their suppliers. If their suppliers are not registered to collect and remit tax, the servicemen must register, self-assess, and remit Use Tax to the Department. The servicemen are considered to be the end-users of the tangible personal property transferred incident to service. Consequently, they are not authorized to collect a "tax" from the service customers. See 86 Ill. Adm. Code 140.108.

The Department does not consider the viewing, downloading or electronically transmitting of video, text, and other data over the internet to be the transfer of tangible personal property. However, if a company provides services that are accompanied with the transfer of tangible personal property, including computer software, such service transactions are generally subject to tax liability under one of the four methods set forth above.

If a transaction does not involve the transfer of any tangible personal property to the customer, then it generally would not be subject to Retailers' Occupation Tax, Use Tax, Service Occupation Tax, or Service Use Tax. Information or data that is electronically transferred or downloaded is not considered the transfer of tangible personal property in this State. See 86 Ill. Adm. Code 130.2105(a)(3).

Computer Software

“Computer software’ means a set of statements, data, or instructions to be used directly or indirectly in a computer in order to bring about a certain result in any form in which those statements, data, or instructions may be embodied, transmitted, or fixed, by any method now known or hereafter developed, regardless of whether the statements, data, or instructions are capable of being perceived by or communicated to humans, and includes prewritten or canned software.” 35 ILCS 120/2-25. Generally, sales of “canned” computer software are taxable retail sales in Illinois. Canned computer software is considered to be tangible personal property regardless of the form in which it is transferred or transmitted, including tape, disc, card, electronic means, or other media. 86 Ill. Adm. Code 130.1935. However, if the computer software consists of custom computer programs, then the sales of such software may not be taxable retail sales. Custom computer programs or software are prepared to the special order of the customer. The selection of pre-written or canned programs assembled by vendors into software packages does not constitute custom software unless real and substantial changes are made to the programs or creation of program interfacing logic. See 86 Ill. Adm. Code 130.1935(c)(3). Computer software that is not custom software is considered to be canned computer software.

If transactions for the licensing of computer software meet all of the criteria provided in subsection (a)(1) of Section 130.1935, neither the transfer of the software nor the subsequent software updates will be subject to Retailers' Occupation Tax. A license of software is not a taxable retail sale if:

- A) It is evident by a written agreement signed by the licensor and the customer;
- B) It restricts the customer's duplication and use of the software;
- C) It prohibits the customer from licensing, sublicensing or transferring the software to a third party (except to a related party) without the permission and control of the licensor;
- D) The licensor has a policy of providing another copy at minimal or no charge if the customer loses or damages the software, or permitting the licensee to make and keep an archival copy, and such policy is either stated in the license agreement, support by the licensor's books and records, or supported by a notarized statement made under penalties of perjury by the licensor; and
- E) The customer must destroy or return all copies of the software to the licensor at the end of the license period. This provision is deemed to be met, in the case of a perpetual license, without being set forth in the license agreement.

If a license of canned computer software does not meet all the criteria the software is taxable.

Please note that it is very common for software to be licensed over the internet and the customer to check a box that states that he or she accepts the license terms. Acceptance in this manner does not constitute a written agreement signed by the licensor and the customer for purposes of subsection (a)(1)(A) of Section 130.1935. To meet the signature requirement for an exempt software license, the agreement must contain the written signature of the licensor and customer.

A provider of software as a service is acting as a serviceman. As a serviceman, the seller does not incur Retailers' Occupation Tax. Service Occupation Tax is imposed upon all persons engaged in the business of making sales of service on all tangible personal property transferred incident to a sale of service, including computer software (35 ILCS 115/3), and is calculated as explained above.

Computer software is defined broadly in the Retailers' Occupation Tax Act. However, computer software provided through a cloud-based delivery system – a system in which computer software is never downloaded onto a client's computer and is only accessed remotely – is not subject to tax. If a provider of a service provides to the subscriber an API, applet, desktop agent, or a remote access agent to enable the subscriber to access the provider's network and services, the subscriber is receiving computer software. Although there may not be a separate charge to the subscriber for the computer software, it is nonetheless subject to tax, unless the transfer qualifies as a non-taxable license of computer software.

If an Illinois customer downloads computer software for free from an out-of-state retailer's web site or server that is also located out of state, the retailer, even though it is donating tangible personal property to the customer, has exercised no power or control over the property in Illinois. In this instance, the donor would not have made any taxable use of the property in Illinois. The customer, the donee, would incur no Use Tax liability for the retailer to collect and remit to Illinois. Illinois does not tax subscriptions.

The Department does not administer the City of Chicago's lease or amusement tax. As a result, the Department cannot speak to the taxability of items under those taxes. For questions concerning taxes imposed in a municipality or county which are not administered by the Illinois Department of Revenue, such as a lease or amusement tax, please contact the county or municipality directly.

I hope this information is helpful. If you require additional information, please visit our website at www.tax.illinois.gov or contact the Department's Taxpayer Information Division at (217) 782-3336.

Very truly yours,

Kimberly Rossini
